

Application No. 391: Memo holder "Travis" with rotating neck

Author: Gervin G., Kärnten, Austria

The likable penguin now even more flexible

While playing with your great magnets I found a way to pimp your memo holder Penguin Travis (www.supermagnete.nl/eng/ANI-05). With two spheres K-06-C (www.supermagnete.nl/eng/K-06-C) as a neck extension his flexibility increases immensely. A single magnetic sphere provides not enough flexibility and with three "Travis" droops.

You could attach "Travis" to your dashboard with a double-sided tape and use him as a pothole detector (as alternative to the classic nodding dog). You could also use him as a parking ticket holder.

Personally, I like "Travis" best as decision-making aid - when I tap his head (see video). For example, when you're in the car and you come to a fork in the road - you just have to decide first which head position means what.
